HANG SENTENCE OVER HIS HEAD

Joe Moran Gets From Two to Fourteen Years in Jeffersonville Prison.

CAULEY SHOWS GOOD SPIRIT

Forgiving Man Who Murderously Attacked Him and Judge Sparks Suspends Sentence.

Joseph Moran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Moran of North Sexton street, this city, was yesterday arraigned in the Shelby county circuit court on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill James Cauley, formerly of this city. It will be remembered that Moran, while in a drunken condition, attacked Cauley with a knife and it was by the merest accident that he did not kill him, as he cut a long gash in his throat.

Since the deed was committed, Cauley has recovered, and he took compassion on Moran and did not prosecute him in a vigorous manner, as the two were former schoolmates and grew up here in the same town together. Judge Sparks sentenced Moran to two to fourteen years in the Jeffersonville reformatory and then suspended sentence. The sentence hanging over Moran's head will probably serve to keep him in the "straight and narrow." He is not allowed to visit saloons or to drink intoxicants and for any venial violation of the law he may be arrested and sent to prison immediately without further trial. The suspended sentence often serves to correct a young man and it is hoped that Moran will see the folly of his way and lead the simple life in the future.

The Shelbyville Liberal says of the case:

"Joseph Moran pleaded guilty in the Shelby circuit court today to a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill James Cauley, and was given a sentence of from two to fourteen years in the State reformatory at Jeffersonville by Judge Sparks. Moran's punishment will end, though, with the payment of one dollar and costs, providing he continues to behave well in the future as the prison sentence was suspended, the judgment of the court being that the circumstances under which the crime was committed were such that the defendant should not suffer the penalty imposed by law. The Judge also held that in his opinion the interest of society did not demand that the extreme penalty should be meted to the defendant in this particular case, providing he shall hereafter behave well. Moran is but 24 years old. Cauley is a few years his junior. The two had been life-time friends till the time of the trouble and are still friendly. Cauley's disposition to forgive and forget had much to do with the final settlement of the case.

"The trouble occurred at the Gus Hirschauer blacksmith shop on East Washington street one Saturday evening several weeks ago. Moran, who was employed by Hirschauer had been drinking heavily and was discharged. Cauley, a cigar maker in this city, remonstrated with Moran over his conduct at a saloon, and later he pounced upon Cauley without a word of warning as the latter, a cripple, was sitting in a chair at the blacksmith shop, and plunged the blade of a Barlow knife into the defenseless man's throat. The grand jury returned an indictment but Cauley soon recovered from his injury. The homes of the men are at Rushville. Cauley is employed here by Al Geis as a cigarmaker."

Court Clerk Coyle sent the commitment papers to the Jeffersonville Reformatory yesterday and Moran will be subject to parole regulations of that institution.

ALMA CONOWAY'S FUNERAL AT ORANGE

Many Friends Attend Last Sad Rites. Interment in Cemetery Near Orange.

POPULAR IN CONNERSVILLE

The remains of Miss Alma Conaway were laid to rest this morning in the North cemetery after brief services at the Orange Christian church. The Connorsville News says of the young lady's demise: "Miss Alma Conaway, of Rushville, passed away, yesterday after a several days' severe illness. The sad death is not only a source of much sorrow at Rushville, but also in this city. She had visited Miss Maude Griffin many times, and was well known in local society circles. She was a young lady of signal accomplishments and was exceedingly popular."

HALL WILL EXPRESS VIEWS ON REFORM

Lieut.-Governor Accepted Invitation to Address National Convention of Model License League.

WANT LIQUOR LEGISLATION

Lieutenant-Governor Frank J. Hall of this city has accepted an offer to speak before a convention in Louisville which will meet for the purpose of adopting some reform liquor legislation.

A dispatch from the Indianapolis Star says: "Lieutenant-Governor Frank J. Hall of Indiana has accepted an invitation to attend the National Model License League convention here next week and make an address embodying his views on reform liquor legislation. He probably will speak on January 23, the third day of the session.

AND WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THIS?

Arthur Drais Who Promised to Leave Indiana, Back in Shelbyville Again.

THE YOUNG MAN IS A MYSTERY

Haunted the Streets of Rushville For Several Months—Left a "Monument" Here.

From Shelbyville comes the news—sorry news indeed—that Arthur Drais, "Our Arthur," is now "among them." Peace be with him. It is the hope of all who knew this strange and uncertain quantity here that he will not find his way back to Rushville.

Three or four young ladies living near the down-town district here, tell a peculiar story about Drais. Morning after morning, very early, about the time the milk man was making his rounds, these several girls, living within a radius of three blocks of each other, heard someone whistling a tuneful, but "solemn-choly" melody, one that they never heard before; neither had they ever heard anything like it. Each now admits having arisen to see from whence came the strange music. It was Drais. They resolved to learn the piece and morning after morning did they awaken and lay on their downy cots, with their ears cocked. As a result they now play on their pianos what they call the two-step-hot-foot "Drais Mad Melody" or "In the Milkman's Tracks."

Here is what the Shelbyville News says of Drais' return there:

"Notwithstanding efforts of police and court officials to sever the tie that binds Arthur Drais returned to Shelbyville from Cincinnati Monday afternoon. Drais, it will be remembered, after a series of escapades in Shelbyville, promised Sheriff John Butler, Attorney Elmer Bassett and Prosecutor Charles Hack that if released from jail, where he was held on a statutory charge, he would never return. Mrs. Drais, his mother, who came from Pennsylvania at the request of the court officers, promised that her son would not return to Shelbyville.

"Drais, however, unmindful of the promises made, landed in Shelbyville Monday afternoon and, despite the vigilance of the police later in the evening when they learned of his presence, eluded the officers.

"Charges preferred against Drais in the court of Justice Moberly are effective and trial will be had in the event of arrest. The officers are mystified by Drais' actions and determined efforts to remain here in the face of conflicting circumstances."

AN ENTERTAINING PROGRAM

TELLS STORY OF THE LAST FIGHT

Ft. Wayne Soldier Gives Complete Account of Gen. Hackleman's Valiant Fight and Death.

WRITES A LETTER TO GOWDY

Says That While There Has Been a Tardy Recognition, Indiana Should "Do It Now."

Capt. John K. Gowdy, who is one of the foremost advocates of a Hackleman monument, received the following letter from an old comrade, and which was published in the Indianapolis Star:

Dear Sir and Comrade—I see by the Indianapolis Star of the 7th inst. that a movement has been inaugurated to erect a monument to the memory of Gen. Pleasant A. Hackleman, who was killed in the battle of Corinth October 3, 1862. I have been both surprised and grieved that the State of Indiana has so long neglected doing anything in this matter, and wish to say that the State never sent any man to the front whose memory is more worthy of perpetuation in either granite or marble, song or story, than Gen. Hackleman, for no man's plume waved more proudly, no man's sword flashed more brightly and no man's voice rang out more bravely than did his, and I can only account for this long neglect on the part of this great commonwealth by the fact that the battle of Corinth is so often confounded in the mind of the public with the advance of Halleck's army from Pittsburg Landing to the same place in April and May, 1862, which is an error.

The battle of Corinth was fought October 3 and 4, 1862, by the old army of the Mississippi and part of the army of West Tennessee, under Brig. Gen. William S. Rosencrans, and the Confederate forces under Gens. Sterling, Price and Earl Van Dorn.

Gen. Hackleman commanded the First Brigade in the Second Division of the Army of Tennessee, the division being commanded by Brevet Major General Thomas A. Davies, which division bore a large part of the brunt of the fighting on the first day; and of which Gen. Rosencrans says it "crowned itself with glory," and there Gen. Hackleman, while gallantly cheering his men in holding a forlorn hope against a largely outnumbering force of the enemy fell. Gen. Davies, in his official report, speaking of the assault, says: "Here the chivalric and generous Hackleman fell mortally wounded." His last utterance was: "I die, but for my country."

I was not in his brigade, but I was in the battle and I say without fear of successful contradiction that while it was not the greatest battle of the war as to numbers, it was not excelled for hard fighting at any time during the entire four years; and any person who will take the pains to examine history and see the strategic location of Corinth as bearing on the then located armies in the West, they will hastily see that to have failed to defeat the Confederate forces meant disaster in the entire country west of the Mississippi. The Confederates had at the most conservative estimate 38,000 men with no rear to protect, while the Union forces were scarcely half that number, with at least one-fifth of our number occupied in guarding the rear to keep open communications. Nevertheless we signally defeated them. Their killed numbered 1423; wounded, 5692; taken prisoners, 2268. We took fourteen stand of colors, two pieces of artillery; 33,000 stand small arms and 45,000 rounds of ammunition, and no one man did more in accomplishing that grand victory than the beloved Gen. Hackleman.

Although it is a tardy recognition, let Indiana now honor the memory of one of her bravest, most chivalrous sons, the one of highest rank who laid down his life on the field of carnage.

I shall be glad to do all in my power even to visiting Indianapolis to urge Allen county's representatives to vote for the appropriation.

Ed Spradling Received Word His Brother, William T., Was Dead in Independence, Kas.

RESIDENT OF TERRE HAUTE

Ed Spradling received word about twelve o'clock yesterday, that his brother, William T. Spradling, had died at Independence, Kansas. The deceased is a resident of Terre Haute, but together with his wife, had been visiting his sister, Mrs. Harrell.

William Spradling was fifty years old and had been in very poor health for several years. The death was due to a complication of diseases. The body was shipped from Independence, Kansas, yesterday and arrived in Terre Haute this morning for burial. Ed Spradling went to Terre Haute yesterday evening to attend the funeral.

CITY CLERK MUST MAKE THE REPORT

New State Law Makes More Work Now For the City Official.

TO GIVE FIGURES ON WATER

Under laws enacted by legislatures of recent years city and town officials find that many duties have been added to those which they were formerly required to perform.

City Clerk Gregg has received from State Statistician Peetz, a blank form which he has to fill out and return to that official. The report must show the indebtedness of the city of Rushville on December 31, 1908, receipts and expenditures, rates paid for city water, and the schedule of water meters. Failure to submit this report means a fine of $100, which goes into the school fund.

HECTOR IS SON OF ZULU CHIEF

Black Knight Will Speak at the District Convention Here Tomorrow.

BIG DAY FOR THE PROHIS

State Chairman Will be Here and Make Address at the Morning Session.

The Sixth District Prohibition convention will be held at the assembly room at the court house tomorrow and will continue throughout the day. From various reports received from over the district a large attendance is anticipated. A county organization will be perfected before the district convention is called, as other counties have done this in advance of Rush county.

State Chairman F. W. Lough of Indianapolis will be present and will deliver an address at the morning session. He is said to be an excellent speaker and one of the most enthusiastic Prohis in the State.

In the afternoon the Black Knight Rev. J. H. Hector of York, Penn., will deliver the principal address. Hector is a wonderful orator, capable of speaking several different languages fluently, is very highly educated and is the son of a Zulu chieftain but was brought to America when a mere boy and educated. The liquor traffic so appalled him that, after special preparation, he decided to make his life work a fight against the business.

Hector has gained so wide a reputation that lecture bureaus have repeatedly offered him the princely salary of $50 per night for lecturing on popular subjects. These offers he has turned down, preferring to stab and jab the liquor business with all his might and main. Mrs. Leonard of Arlington, county chairman, will preside at the meetings.

The Gentleman From Mississippi

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" is a story of an epoch making battle of right against wrong, of honesty against corruption, of simplicity and sincerity against deceit, bribery and intrigue. It is the story of today in this country. It vitally concerns every man, woman and child in the United States, so far reaching is its influence.

The warfare is now going on—the warfare of honest men against corrupt political machines.

The story tells of the "inside" of the political maneuvers in Washington and of the workings of bosses there and elsewhere—how they shape men and women to their ends, how their cunning intrigues extend into the very social life of the nation's capital. You will find inspiration in the career of the honest old Southern planter elected to the United States senate and the young newspaper reporter who becomes his private secretary and political pilot. Your heart will beat in sympathy with the love of the secretary and the senator's youngest daughter.

You will read of the lobbyists and find that not all of them are men. You will see how avarice causes a daughter to conspire against her father. You will hear the note of a gripping national tragedy in the words of Peabody, the "boss of the senate." But cause for laughter as well will not be found lacking in this truly many-sided narrative.

Don't miss the opening chapters of this serial story in Thursday's issue of the Daily Republican.

Went into a place where a lot of earth beings were rolling large wooden balls out of wood, over a wooden level trying to knock down other wooden objects that looked like bottles. Just as fast as they would knock them down a diminutive earth being would set them up, as if to aggravate them. And it did seem to arouse the temper of a few who spoke in loud language and gesticulated, saying something about having plenty of spare time to strike the others—or in words to that effect. Piano Tuning and Rebuilding

As evidence regarding my ability to do strictly high class work and such as will please the most exacting, I submit the following extracts from letters of commendation, coming from such sources as should convince the most critical that my work is of the highest order.

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 24, 1906.

Mr. S. E. Secoy has rebuilt a Steinway Grand Piano for the University School of Music, and his work has been done in an entirely satisfactory manner.

I consider him an unusually skillful workman, and should not hesitate to intrust any tuning, voicing or rebuilding to him.

F. L. LAWRENCE,
Director of the School of Music of the University of Illinois.
I cheerfully corroborate the above.

N. HAY,

Purchasing Agent of the University of Illinois.

Onarga, Ill., Sept. 8, 1907.

Mr. S. E. Secoy has done some very fine work for us in the way of Piano tuning.

His reconstruction of one of our Grands has resulted in as fine an instrument as I ever heard played. His workmanship is thorough in every particular. He has done our tuning for the past year and we have been highly pleased with this as well. He gave satisfaction in this particular to Mr. Sherwood of Chicago who gave our commencement recital. We commend his work most cordially.

THE MAKING OF A U. S. SENATOR

Indiana Legislature Presents
Its Nominees Today.

ELECTION TO BE TOMORROW

With Floods of Oratory the Republicans Today Nominate Senator Hemenway to Succeed Himself in High Council, While the Democrats Name as Their Choice Mr. Shively—On Joint Ballot Tomorrow the Latter Will Be Elected by a Majority of Sixteen If All Members Are Present When Roll Is Called.

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—The house and senate met today and all but elected Benjamin F. Shively of South Bend to the United States senate. He will be declared the choice of the state at a joint meeting of the house and the senate at noon tomorrow.

The proceedings today were marked by much felicitous oratory on both sides of the respective chambers, the nominating speeches being graceful in character and fitting to the high occasion. In both houses large crowds were present and despite the rules of applause from the galleries was frequent. Mr. Shively received a majority of the votes cast in the house, which is Democratic, but the senate, with a Republican majority of four, endorsed Senator Hemenway's actions in the senate by voting to return him. It was a purely complimentary vote, the joint ballot which will be held tomorrow being the only effective proceeding according to law. The Democrats have a majority of sixteen on joint ballot of the two houses, which will be the size of Mr. Shively's majority if all members are present tomorrow.

The Formal Proceedings.

The senate voted this morning and the house this afternoon. Senator Proctor of Elkhart nominated Mr. Shively in the senate. The nomination was seconded by Senators Harland, Stotsenberg and Kistler. Senator Durrie of Evansville nominated Senator Hemenway. Senator Mattingly of Washington made the seconding speech. In the house Representative Thornton of New Albany made the principal speech nominating Shively. The seconding speeches for the Democrats were made by Representatives McGinnis, Faulkner, Gause, Mitchell and Sweeney.

Representative Williams of Warrick county, nominated Senator Hemenway and the seconding speech was made by Representative Newig of Evansville. The vote in the senate was 27 to 23 for Hemenway; in the house, 60 to 40 for Shively. The Democrats were very enthusiastic, as it was the first time they have been in the majority on such a proposition since 1893.

Mr. Shively will be present at noon tomorrow to deliver an address before the joint session acknowledging his thanks for the honor conferred upon him.

Campaign Contributions.

The senate committee on public morals, meeting after the session yesterday afternoon, voted to report favorably on the drastic Mattingly bill pertaining to campaign contributions, which, among other things, prohibits corporations from making campaign contributions at all.

Since its introduction, the Mattingly bill has attracted much attention because of its wide scope, and the members of the committee, in reaching the conclusion to report it favorably, explained that they did so for the purpose of having the bill printed and brought in detail before the members of the senate. Senator Mattingly, who is a member of the committee, explained that this would be the purpose of the report, and he said that he might not even vote for the bill himself on passage.

Republicans Fail to Agree.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 19.—The election of George E. Chamberlain, Democrat, as United States senator from Oregon

GEORGE E. CHAMBERLAIN.

tomorrow has been practically assured by reason of the failure of the thirty-eight Republicans who are opposed to him to decide on any one candidate to receive their support.

ANOTHER TERM FOR PENROSE

Pennsylvania Elects United States Senator to Succeed Himself.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 19.—Boies Penrose will again represent the state of Pennsylvania in the United States senate, according to the votes of the two houses of the state legislature, cast here today. He is a native and a resident of Philadelphia, a lawyer by profession and has been prominent in the public life of the state since his election to the state legislature in 1884. His coming six years' term in the United States senate, which will begin March 4, will be his third term.

The joint election of Senator Penrose by the two houses of the state legislature will take place tomorrow, as provided for in the United States law on the election of senators.

SECRETARY ROOT TO SUCCEED PLATT

New York Legislature Picks
New Senator Today.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19.—As required by the federal law, the two houses of the legislature of the state of New York met here today in separate session to vote for a successor to Thomas C. Platt, United States senator from this state.

The votes today were merely confirmatory to the choice of the caucuses of the Republicans of the two houses, Elihu Root, secretary of state. Tomorrow the two houses will meet in joint session, according to law, and vote together for Mr. Root, who will then be declared senator from New York for the six years' term commencing on March 4 next.

New York's new senator is one of the country's leading lawyers. He is a native of New York state and is in his sixty-fifth year. Mr. Root was secretary of war in the cabinet of President McKinley and has been secretary of state since July 1, 1905.

MINING ISSUE TO BE JOINED

Peace Or War In Coal Region
the Question.

CONVENTION BEGAN TODAY

Meeting of United Mine Workers of America Is Called on to Decide Momentous Question of Renewal of Present Compact—Operators Said to Be Willing, but Miners Declare Changed Economic Conditions Demand an Appreciable Increase in the Wage Scale.

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—Whether the country is to have another coal strike or not will probably be decided at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America which began here this morning. The miners will again put forward the demands that have been rejected by the operators, they will be rejected by the latter, and the issue will be joined.

Demands of the Miners.

The demands of the miners read as follows:

First.—That an agreement shall be negotiated between the representatives of the miners and the operators of the anthracite region and all disputes arising under the contract shall be adjusted as provided for in such agreement.

Second.—We demand the complete recognition of the United Mine Workers of America as a party to negotiate a wage contract and that the United Mine Workers of America shall be recognized in our right to provide any method we may adopt for the collection of revenues for the organization.

Third.—That we demand an eight hour day with no reduction of wages.

Fourth.—That all coal shall be mined and paid for by the ton of 2,000 pounds.

Fifth.—That we demand a definite and more uniform scale of wages and prices for all classes of labor at all collieries in the anthracite region and that all employees paid less than $1.50 per day shall receive a 10 per cent advance, and all employees paid more than $1.50 and less than $2 a day shall receive a 5 per cent advance.

Sixth.—That the system whereby a contract miner has more than one job or employs two or more laborers be abolished.

Seventh.—That the employers be required to issue uniform pay statements designating the name of the employee, the colliery where employed, the amount of wages and the class of work performed.

Eighth.—That the contract shall be made for the period of one year.

Agreement Ends March 31.

The officers of the miners' unions, headed by the president, Thomas L. Lewis, the successor of John Mitchell, are insistent upon these demands. The leading operators have declared their firm intention not to grant them. As the working agreement between the unions and the operators expires on March 31 some basis of agreement must be reached at the present convention if peace is to be preserved in the anthracite industry.

The operators are willing to renew the agreement, which is the one made through the mediation of the Roosevelt strike commission five years ago, but the miners' leaders declare that changed conditions make a readjustment on more liberal terms to the workers necessary.

While Indiana was inducting into office the first Democratic governor elected in many years, Missouri was inaugurating the first Republican governor chosen in that State since 1871.

During the year public gifts and bequests in the United States reached a total of $90,452,090, a decline from several previous years and yet a goodly aggregate, proving the advanced position of the people of this country in large benefactions. About half of the sum named was given by living persons, indicating a growth of the idea that in philanthropy it is best "do it yourself." In 1908, in round figures, $36,000,000 was bestowed on educational institutions, $39,000,000 on charities, $4,400,000 on religious organizations, $9,400,000 on museums, galleries and public improvements, and $834,500 on libraries. Among the gifts of the year was one of $2,000,000 for settlement work, $3,500,000 to Boston's park system, $1,000,000 to the American Natural History Museum, $1,000,000 to a Chicago training school and $500,000 to a mechanics institute in Cincinnati.

Some names are more conspicuous than others in giving, but the widely established tendency should not be overlooked. Last year Mr. Carnegie gave $7,437,000 to various objects, Mr. Rockefeller $2,934,000 and Mrs. Russell Sage $1,559,635. But nearly $80,000,000 came from other individuals. This is a billion-dollar country in benevolence. At the present rate the public gifts in the United States in the course of a century would amount to ten billions, with all the increment resulting from the possession and use of the vast amount. This subject is a part of that relating to the ministry of great wealth in the United States, the wealthiest of nations, and must not be slighted in studies of the progress of the times.

As the world grows older and gradually better, we are coming to appreciate more and more the advantages that are being held out to us. One of the best for the education and refinement of men, women and children are the modern moving pictures. Think of seeing some of the actual wonders of the world for a few cents!

In the days when we men of the present were young we were taught that the circus was the moving encyclopaedia of the world's wonders—and so it was in a way. Circus day was the annual gala occasion of our lives. But now the moving picture is the pride of the small child's life. If the boy or girl is taught right they will be urged to cultivate the habit of going to see good moving pictures, where they can acquire better ideas of the world in a week than they can learn from history and geography in a month. The majority of the little boys and girls cannot have the opportunity of traveling over the world, and what they read in story books of the Niagara Falls, say, is dim and vague to them. But let them watch the vivid portrayal of the wonders of the great phenomena on canvas and they can live under its spell forever. The same is true of the other marvels of the world. Expert artists have gone into darkest recesses of the world to bring out the curious things they hide; they have transferred the beauties of the universe to films; and the seeing of these wonders are within the reach of every child. With the movement that is on foot to cut out the vulgar and suggestive things the children see in some picture shows, the entertainment is the most ideal that can be imagined.

The Neighbor's Pest

Being a Burlesque on Edgar Allen Poe's "The Bells." This Jingle Was Inspired On Hearing a Local Orchestra Practice. We Publish It For Two Reasons: Today is Poe's Birthday Anniversary and Secondly—Well, Go Ahead, Read It and Guess the Second Reason.

Listening, faintly I discern
Weird growling noises that I spurn.
An orchestra (that would be to be)
Butchering up a symphony.
Distinctly of old Wagner's style
The drawing discords of the viol
Is shameful.

The traps, a snare drum and big
"base"—

In unison, no time—a race—
Simply to see,
Which shall it be
In the beastly humdrum
Whether snare or base drum
Plays loudest.

A triangle adorns the classic's rack;
A symphony in itself—alack!
The drummer is wont for overtime,
In a dancing sort of runic rhyme,
Beating time, time, time. Overtime!
With a time time, time. Overtime!
time, time, time, time, time,
time, time, time.
In a sort of runic rhyme.
Synecopated? time! In a sort of synecopated time.

Hear the scenic effects—sand blocks,
Wooden blocks.
How they rasp, or knock or globble,
As the steed upon the cobbles
Runs away.

Keeping time, time, time, with the fiddles—
Perfect riddles—
Partly drawing and always squawling,
Uneasily drawing, like the mauling
of the wind about the eaves,
Fiercely drawing, and a squawling,
and a mauling, and a mauling,
and a mauling

With the boistrousness of the mauling of the winds about the eaves.
Now comes the "chills and ague" clear
"Zeke" Schumann's "Wauken der left ear."
Now melancholy, now strenuously,
The piccolo pipes to high G.
In the time, and the time
Of the jambling sleigh bells' chime—

So distorted,
Unassorted
Is the time, time, time, with the chime, chime, chime, of the jambling sleigh bells' chime
Is the time and the time of the "chills and ague" time,
Is the jambling, trembling time;
Distracting time, of the jingling sleigh bells' time.

And the people, lovely people.
(They that dwell up in the steeple.)
Gone to bed.
And the neighbor,
They that labor
Seeks calm repose, to only toss and groan

While the flute emits a whistle
Severing bone, or flesh, or gristle
Of the laborers upon whose hearts it lays a stone.

With its mimicry sonorous,
Unchallenged—as all glorious—
Let's appeal from our hearts
To the god of fallen arts
With all that's in us—true, sublime,
To endow the "master" good march time,
Two-four time!
That will rhyme!
And of any other time that will rhyme
And of any other time that will rhyme, rhyme, rhyme, rhyme!
And of all the kinds of time that will rhyme.

Annihilated god! forsakened muse!
Why heap these coals of art's refuse
Upon our souls!
These living coals
From which no symphony e'er tolls.
But the people—those who lay and toss and groan
Should through their window hurl a stone.
Should through their window hurl a
stone!
A cobbles-stone!
And then do time!
Double-time!
With a will that's staunch, sublime,
And with a will that's staunch, sublime,
Repress the weekly meeting time.

THUMB SEVERELY MASHED

Albert Capp had a narrow escape from serious injury this morning while hauling a load of wood to this city. He stepped on the singletree, slipped and fell under the horses. He miraculously escaped being stepped on by the animals and while attempting to avoid them, the wagon ran over his right leg and the thumb of his left hand. The thumb was mashed flat, but the leg was not injured, other than being slightly sprained.

BUTLER LANDED A BIG OFFICIAL PLUM

Son of Former Superintendent of the City Schools Here, Receives Recognition.

GOES ON THE PRINTING BOARD

Rushville people will be pleased to learn of the rich plum landed by A. E. Butler yesterday. He is a son of Prof. Butler, who was superintendent of the city schools here, and was formerly foreman in the Graphic office in this city.

The Indianapolis Star says of the appointment:

"Although Governor Marshall cast his vote for Everett McGinnis, a Democrat, the State Printing Board yesterday elected A. E. Butler, a printer employed on the Star, to be clerk of the board to fill the place vacated by Harry Slough, who was recently appointed labor commissioner.

"The board met yesterday morning at the office of Governor Marshall. While the Governor had no objections to Butler he desired to go on record as voting for a Democrat. The office of clerk of the board pays $1500 a year. Butler is a member of Typographical Union No. 1. The Printing Board is composed of the Governor, the auditor of State, the secretary of State, and the reporter of the Supreme court."

AMUSEMENTS

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

A very amusing incident occurred in the Homer schools in which the bright school boy carried off all the honors.

It was the primary room and the teacher was just teaching the children their alphabet. This boy in question could not learn the letter "e." The patient young woman had spent hours and hours endeavoring to fix the letter in the mind of her pupil. At last, coming to the conclusion that her efforts were fruitless she decided to use the blackboard, thinking possibly that by diagram she might be able to help the youngster somewhat. Writing the letter "e" on the board she asked him what it was.

"I don't know," replied the young student.

Having about decided to give it up as a hopeless case, the young school teacher in one last effort wrote the word "see" on the board. Then she put this question to him.

"Now will you please tell me what the first letter in this word is?"

"S," replied the youth, being able to read any letter but "e."

"Now what is the next letter," asked the school marm, thinking that he might be able to guess it anyway. "I don't believe I know," drawled the absent minded boy.

"Listen to me," the teacher said quickly, growing rather impatient after spending so much time with the boy and not teaching him anything. "The second letter in that word is 'e' and the third letter in that same word is 'e.' Now can you tell me what those two letters are?"

"Twins, of course," said the boy, his eyes twinkling with mischief.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

GIVEN AWAY.—Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new revised Edition, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Chapter 28

RUTHVEN was after his divorce. That was what it all meant. His first check on the long trail came with the stupefying news of Gerald's runaway marriage to the young girl he was laying his own plans to marry some day in the future, and at first the news staggered him, leaving him apparently no immediate incentive for securing his freedom.

But Ruthven instantly began to realize that what he had lost he might not have lost had he been free to shoulder aside the young fellow who had forestalled him. The chance had passed—that particular chance. But he'd never again allow himself to be caught in a position where such a chance could pass him by because he was not legally free to at least make the effort to seize it.

Fear in his soul had kept him from blazoning his wife's infirmity to the world as cause for an action against her, but he remembered Neergard's impudent cruise with her on the Niobrara, and he had temporarily settled on that as a means to extort revenue, not intending such an action should ever come to trial. And then he learned that Neergard had gone to pieces. That was the second check.

Ruthven needed money. He needed it because he meant to put the ocean between himself and Selwyn before commencing any suit, whatever ground he might choose for entering such a suit. He required capital on which to live abroad during the proceedings if that could be legally arranged. And meanwhile, preliminary to any plan of campaign, he desired to know where his wife was and what might be her actual physical and mental condition.

But Ruthven was totally unprepared for the report brought him by a private agency to the effect that Mrs. Ruthven was apparently in perfect health, living in the country, maintaining a villa and staff of servants; that she might be seen driving a perfectly appointed Cossack sleigh any day with a groom on the rumble and a companion beside her; that she seemed to be perfectly sane, healthy in body and mind, comfortable, happy and enjoying life under the protection of a certain Captain Selwyn, who paid all her bills and at certain times was seen entering or leaving her house at Edgewater.

Excited, incredulous, but hoping for the worst, Ruthven had posted off to his attorneys. To them he naively confessed his desire to be rid of Alice. He reported her misconduct with Neergard—which he knew was a lie—her pretense of mental prostration, her disappearance and his last interview with Selwyn in the card room. He also gave a vivid description of that gentleman's disgusting behavior and his threats of violence during that interview.

To all of which his attorneys listened very attentively, bade him have no fear of his wife, requested him to make several affidavits and leave the rest to them for the present.

Which he did, without hearing from them until Mr. Hallam telegraphed him to come to Edgewater if he had nothing better to do.

Mr. Hallam was a very busy, very sanguine, very impetuous young man, and when he met Ruthven at the Edgewater station he told him promptly that he had the best case on earth; that he, Hallam, was going to New York on the next train, now almost due, and that Ruthven had better drive over and see for himself how gayly his wife maintained her household, for the Cossack sleigh, with its gray crimson tchug, had but just returned from the usual afternoon spin, and the young chataleine of Willow Villa was now on the snow covered lawn, romping with the coachman's huge white wolfhound. Ruthven drove to the villa.

There were clumps of evergreens about, tall cedars, a bit of bushy foreland and a stretch of snow. And across this open space of snow a young girl was moving, followed by a white wolfhound. Once she paused, hesitated, looked cautiously around her. Ruthven, hiding behind a bush, saw her thrust her arm into a low evergreen shrub and draw out a shining object that glittered like glass. Then she started toward the house again.

At first Ruthven thought she was his wife. Then he was not sure, and he cast his cigar away and followed, slinking forward among the evergreens. But the youthful, fur clad figure kept straight on to the veranda of the house, and Ruthven, curious and determined to find out whether it was Alice or not, left the semi-shelter of the evergreens and crossed the open space just as the woman's figure disappeared around an angle of the veranda.

Vexed, determined not to return without some definite discovery, Ruthven stepped upon the veranda. Just around the angle of the porch he heard a door opening, and he hurried forward, impatient and absolutely unafraid, anxious to get one good look at his wife and be off.

But when he turned the angle of the porch there was no one there. Only an open door confronted him, with a big mild eyed wolfhound standing in the doorway looking steadily up at him.

Ruthven glanced somewhat dubiously at the dog; then as the animal made no offensive movement he craned his fleshy neck striving to see inside the house.

He did see—nothing very much, only the same young girl, still in her furs emerging from an inner room, her arms full of dolls.

In his eagerness to see more Ruthven pushed past the great white dog, who withdrew his head disdainfully from the unceremonious contact, but quietly followed Ruthven into the house standing beside him, watching him out of great, limpid, deerlike eyes.

But Ruthven no longer heeded the dog. His amused and slightly sneering gaze was fastened on the girl in furs who had entered what appeared to be a living room to the right and now, down on her knees beside a couch, smiling and talking confidentially and quite happily to herself, was placing her dolls against the wall.

Then the great white dog growled very low, and the girl in the fur jacket looked around and up quickly.

Alice! He realized it as she caught his pale eyes fixed on her, and she stared, sprang to her feet, still staring. Then into her eyes leaped terror, the living horror of recognition distorting her face. And as she saw he meant to speak she recoiled, shrinking away turning in her fright like a hunted thing. The strange doll in her hand glittered. It was a revolver wrapped in a red rag.

"W-what's the matter?" he stammered, stepping forward, fearful of the weapon she clutched.

But at the sound of his voice she screamed crept back closer against the wall, screamed again, pushing the shining muzzle of the weapon deep into her fur jacket above her breast.

"F-for God's sake," he gasped, "don't fire—don't!"

She closed both eyes and pulled the trigger. Something knocked her flat against the wall, but she heard no sound of a report, and she pulled the trigger again and felt another blow.

The second blow must have knocked her down, for she found herself rising to her knees, reaching for the table to aid her. But her hand was all red and slippery. She looked at it stupidly, fell forward, rose again, with the acrid smell of smoke choking her and her pretty fur jacket all soaked with the warm, wet stuff which now stained both hands.

Then she got to her knees once more groped in the rushing darkness and swayed forward, falling loosely and flat. And this time she did not try to rise.

It was her way. It had always been her way out of trouble—the quickest, easiest escape from what she did not choose to endure.

As for the man, they finally contrived to drag the dog from him and lift him to the couch, where he lay twitching among the dolls for awhile, then stopped twitching.

Later in the night men came with lanterns, who carried him away. A doctor said that there was the usual chance for partial recovery. But it was the last excitement he could ever venture to indulge in.

TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

Senator Brandegee Again to Represent Connecticut.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 19.—By vote of the two houses of the state legislature, cast today, Frank B. Brandegee will again be the junior senator from the state of Connecticut. He has represented the state in the senate since May, 1905, when he was chosen to succeed the late Orville H. Platt.

The election of Mr. Brandegee will be completed tomorrow by the vote in joint session of the state senate and house of representatives.

No Facilities for Big Crowd.
Washington, Jan. 19.—Governor Willson of Kentucky, who visited President Roosevelt in connection with the Lincoln celebration Feb. 12 at the Lincoln farm in Kentucky, expressed to the president the fear that there would be serious lack of facilities for handling anything like a large crowd.

Texas Has Cause for Rejoicing.
Austin, Tex., Jan. 19.—The announcement of the triumph of the state in its litigation with the Waters-Pierce Oil company, whereby the state secured a verdict for $1,600,000 in the way of a money verdict and the ouster from the state, was joyfully received by the state's attorneys.

Miss Charlesworth Not Drowned.
London, Jan. 19.—Miss Violet Gordon Charlesworth, whose mysterious disappearance a short time ago caused a great deal of excitement because of her remarkable career and her intimate association with extensive stock deals, has been found and identified at Oban, Scotland.

MI-O-NA

Stomach Misery Almost Immediately.

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and quick action should be taken.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mi-o-na will relieve instantly.

But Mi-o-na unlike many so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach, where the gastric juices are produced.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s, and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, Mi-o-na cures. It is a producer of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich red blood.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—That the Republicans of the house will not be able to present a solid front against the repeal of the county local option law was indicated last evening at a conference of the minority members. The meeting was called by Representative Miles Furnas of Randolph county, caucus chairman, but adjournment was taken before an attempt was made to bind the minority members to a solid vote against the repeal of the law. Two of the minority members, it developed, will not be bound by a caucus on the question. These men are Representatives C. C. Schreeder and Chris Hewig of Vanderburg county. Colonel Schreeder made an address at the conference in which he declared that he would not be bound by caucus. He said he had opposed the passage of the county local option law at the special session of the legislature in conformity with the wishes of his constituents and had been re-elected on such a platform. The meeting of the Republicans was called for the purpose of completing the minority organization by the adoption of rules to govern the caucus. Among other things, it was decided that a caucus could be called only on petition of fifteen members.

In line with Gov. Marshall's program to lessen expenses at the state house, a bill has been introduced by Representative John B. Faulkner, Democrat, of Michigan City, to reorganize the force in the governor's office. The measure had the approval of Governor Marshall. It provides for the reduction of the salary of the governor's clerk from $1,500 to $900 a year and for a cut of from $1,000 to $900 in the salary of the governor's stenographer. The office of clerk and stenographer of the board of pardons, which paid $1,000 a year, is to be done away with, and the work taken up by the governor's clerk. The position of expert accountant for the governor is to be abolished. It paid a salary of $2,500 and was held by one of ex-Governor Hanly's personal friends at Lafayette. His resignation was received by Governor Marshall several days ago. Governor Marshall does not think he will need an accountant under the uniform system of accounting which probably will be adopted. The Faulkner bill provides for the appointment of a special counsel for the governor at a salary of $3,600 a year. This counsel shall handle all cases for the state in which the governor is directly interested. It is estimated that Faulkner's plan would result in an annual saving of something like $12,000 a year to the state. Under the last administration many attorneys were employed by Governor Hanly to aid the state in the prosecution of various cases. It is the general understanding that the attorney general shall appear for the state in cases in which it is defendant or plaintiff, but in his message to the legislature Governor Marshall called attention to the employment of special counsel in many instances. He believes that if he is permitted to employ a special attorney for $3,600 that he can save the state money and accomplish as much as was done under the Hanly system. An inspection of the records containing the governor's emergency and contingent funds during the last four years shows that many Indianapolis attorneys received employment to represent the state. It is said that a very large amount of the governor's emergency and contingent funds went for the employment of extra attorneys and detectives.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has been constantly warning people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason, mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

ASTOUNDING FRAUDS SHOWN

Interior Department Has Uncovered Evidence of a Startling Character Revealing Alleged Operations of Land Looters to the Extent of More Than $100,000,000—Secretary Garfield Asks for an Immediate Increase in Appropriation to Cover the Expense of Going After the Alleged Swindlers.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Information of a startling character of alleged wholesale and astounding frauds upon the public lands has come into the possession of Secretary of the Interior Garfield through special agents in the field. The serious allegation is made that approximately $110,000,000 worth of lands in a states principally west of the Mississippi river have been fraudulently acquired within the past two years by corporations and individuals.

With a view of recovering these lands, Secretary Garfield has sent letters to Chairmen Hale and Tawney of the senate and house appropriation committees respectively, asking for an additional appropriation of $500,000 which if granted, with that already asked for, will give the department $1,000,000 for that purpose. It is stated that there is reasonable prospect of recovering much of this alleged fraudulently acquired land if the appropriation is promptly made. Secretary Garfield also submits a statement of H. H. Schwartz, chief of the field service, showing over 32,000 distinct cases of alleged land frauds demanding further investigation.

Home Course In Modern Agriculture

IV.—Water In Its Relation to Plant Growth

By C. V. GREGORY,

Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

WE have already learned something of the value of water as a plant food. This is only one of its minor uses, however. In addition to the water which is decomposed by the plant and used in making starch and other products, many times as much is used for other purposes. One of the principal of these is dissolving plant food and carrying it upward to the leaves. After reaching the leaves most of the water is evaporated, leaving in the leaf cells the materials which it brought up.

The cells of which the leaves are made are very delicate and depend for their stiffness on the water which they contain. Without this water they would collapse in the same way a bicycle tire does when the air is let out. This is the very thing that happens when the leaves wilt. The rise of water from the roots has been checked in some way, and as evaporation still continues the leaf cells become partly emptied and shrink up.

The leaves are not entirely helpless at such a time, however. On each side of the tiny pores on the underside of the leaf is a cell known as a guard cell. When the supply of moisture begins to fail, these guard cells shrink up and in doing so close the openings, thus checking evaporation. In some plants, like corn, the leaves curl up at such a time, thus still further lessening the rate of evaporation. Of course when a leaf is wilted in this manner the work of building up plant tissues is seriously checked. This often happens during the dry weather of July and August, when the soil becomes so dry that the roots have difficulty in obtaining the needed moisture. The checking of development which results often reduces the yield of corn as much as twenty to thirty bushels per acre and that of other crops in proportion. For every pound of dry matter in a mature plant from 300 to 500 pounds of water have been brought up by the roots and evaporated from the leaves. One of the most important factors in the production of a maximum crop is the maintenance of a plentiful water supply within easy reach of the roots.

There are three classes of water in the soil. The first is known as ground water and is that water which collects in a hole dug in a wet soil or runs off through the tile in drained land. The second is the capillary water and is that which is left between the soil particles after the ground water has been drawn off. The ground water is affected by gravitation, while the capillary water is not.

If a sample of soil that looks perfectly dry is placed in an oven and heated for some time it will be found that it has lost considerably in weight, owing to moisture being driven off. This is the third class, or hygroscopic moisture. This, of course, is of no value to the plant, since the roots cannot extract moisture from an air dry soil. Neither can they use the ground water. This is really a damage in the upper two or three feet of soil, since it so fills the spaces that the roots cannot get enough air.

During a rain the ground water passing through the soil draws considerable air with it. As soon as the soil becomes saturated, however, so that the water is no longer moving, the air soon becomes used up, and the crop will turn yellow and cease to grow. The remedy, of course, is to provide drains to remove the ground water quickly.

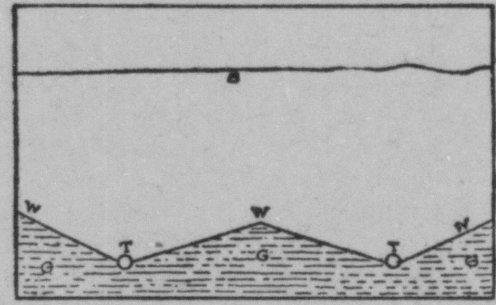

FIG. VIII.—HOW TILE DRAINS AFFECT THE WATER TABLE.

[S, surface of the ground; W, water table; G, ground water; T, tile drains.]

The only kind of water which the roots can use is the capillary water. When this is present in the right amount, it fills about half of the spaces between the soil particles. The rest are filled with air. The water easily dissolves plant food from the soil grains which it surrounds. Thus the two essentials for rapid root development, air and plant food, are present in the proper amounts and in a readily available form. As fast as the water is taken up by the roots more is brought up by capillarity from the supply in the subsoil in the manner noted in article No. 2.

The place where the capillary water joins the ground water is called the water table. If this water table is too high, the feeding ground of the roots is greatly restricted, since they cannot go below it. If, on the other hand, the water table is too deep, capillarity cannot bring the water up as fast as it is used by the roots.

In dry weather the water table lowers rapidly, but the roots are also growing downward at the same time. The greatest damage from drought comes when a sudden dry period follows a few weeks of excessive rainfall. The abundance of moisture during the early part of the season has kept the plants from sending their roots down very deep. When dry weather does come, the soil bakes and cracks and evaporation goes on very rapidly. This, together with the demands made by the plants, lowers the water table so rapidly that root growth cannot keep pace with it. As a result the capillary moisture within reach of the roots is not replaced as fast as it is used, and the growth of the plants is seriously checked.

Fields with a clay subsoil withstand dry weather much better than those with a subsoil of sand or gravel. The latter, because of their looser texture, allow the water to filter down out of reach instead of retaining it for future use, as do the clay soils.

The farmer cannot influence the amount of rainfall, of course. After the rain has fallen, however, it belongs to him to do with as he sees fit. The way he handles it from this time on determines to a large extent the size of the crop he will harvest when fall comes.

The first problem is to get rid of the surplus ground water quickly, and the second is to waste as little of the capillary water as possible. An endeavor should be made to lower the water table to three or four feet below the surface as soon as possible after each rain. If this can be accomplished in two or three days the growth of the crop will be interfered with very little. A few soils are so well drained naturally that little artificial drainage is necessary. On almost any farm there are hills and ridges where the natural drainage is sufficient. The hollows between these elevations, however, and all the flat fields will yield much larger crops if tiled.

The distance a line of tile will "draw" is in sandy soils often as far as 100 feet on each side, while in heavy clay soils it may not be more than sixteen feet. This distance is also affected by the depth of the tile. The deeper they are placed the farther they will draw. Tile are usually placed at an average depth of about three feet, though in many instances four would be better. The extra cost of digging the ditch a foot deeper is something of an objection, but is balanced by the fact that the lines of tile do not need to be as close together. Deep tile are not as easily displaced by freezing, and a deeper feeding ground for the roots is provided.

A mistake made more frequently than that of not putting the drains in deep enough is that of using too small tile. The character of the soil, the fall and the amount of surface drained are the factors which largely determine the proper size to use. Almost every book or bulletin of tile drainage gives tables for figuring the size of tile required under various conditions. If there is any doubt it always pays to get a size too large rather than a size too small, even if the cost is a little more.

It is usually better to let the job of tiling to a contractor rather than to attempt to do it yourself. There are reliable tilers in almost every locality who can be depended upon to lay the tile to grade and do a first class job in every particular. Only the hard burned tile should be used. These will last for a lifetime or longer if properly put in. When tile go within fifteen or twenty feet of trees the joints should be cemented. Otherwise the tree roots will find their way through the joints and fill up the drains to such an extent that the flow of water will be cut off.

The most important part of a drainage system is the outlet. The tile should empty into a stream if possible. Water should not be allowed to stand over the mouth of the outlet if it can be avoided, as this checks the current and causes the drain to partly fill up with silt, thus reducing its capacity just that much.

With a thorough system of tile drainage in good working order the problem of getting rid of surplus water is solved. Tiling also helps to solve the problem of lack of water. The roots go down so much deeper in a tiled soil that they are in position to withstand a drought better than if they were a foot or two farther above the water table. Removing the surplus water by drainage also hastens the warming of the soil in the spring.

ONLY WOMAN AT HEAD OF PARTY

Rush County's Prohi Chairman Claims Credit For Recent Temperance Move.

INSPIRED A LOCAL LAWYER

Mrs. Leonard of Arlington Makes Address and Gives Interview at Connersville.

Mrs. Laura Leonard, of Arlington, who addressed the Prohibition county convention in this city Saturday says the Connersville Courier enjoys the peculiar honor of being the only woman in the State, if not in the United States, to control the fortunes of a political party composed wholly of men.

Mrs. Leonard has been for two years and is now county chairman for Rush county of the Prohibition party. She takes the responsibility naturally and seems not in the least out of place in the deliberative sessions of that party.

"She is the best county chairman I have," said State Chairman Lough of Indianapolis. "She gets right out, and—say, you ought to see her stir things up."

Mrs. Leonard is also a member of the State executive committee of the Prohibition party and in this capacity she also is distinguished as the only woman. Another county chairmanship which she fills is that of the woman's auxiliary, a branch of the W. C. T. U. In the convention yesterday Mrs. Leonard said: "I find it easier to control the men in their meetings than to control the women."

To the Courier Mrs. Leonard said: "I was a little timid at first, but the men urged me to take the office. I'll tell you it has been a pleasure to me to fill the office during the whole of the two years. I find the men easy to manage. They are courteous and respectful. One Prohibitionist told me that the men were easier to manage because they were better trained than the women."

Mrs. Leonard said she had some trouble in getting the petition started for the local option election in Rush county. "I asked a young lawyer, who is a friend of mine, to start it," said she. "Well, he did not like to do it. I told him that he was young and this was a good time for him to make a name for himself. He consented, but he found only a few persons at Arlington willing to start it. He found several persons who were 'sick.'"

Mrs. Leonard explained that the "sick" ones were the politicians who had been disappointed in the late general election.
